"Fear" and "Desire" in Plymouth Colony

Sunday, November 24, 2013 at the DoubleTree Hotel, Annapolis, MD

This year's Compact Day Dinner will feature a Colonial woman, "Fear Brewster Allerton." She will be portrayed by Plimoth Plantation's Director Museum of Affairs, Kate LaPrad, in period costume and first person character.

Kate LaPrad, who started as a summer intern in the Education Department, now oversees the coordination of school services, public programs, interpretation and exhibits at Plimoth Plantation. She joined as a grant writer in July 2010, after graduating with a Masters degree in American Material Culture from the University of Delaware's Winterthur Program, a collaborative program established in 1952 with the Winterthur Museum, Garden, and Library. Kate also holds a B.A. in Art History and History.

Kate will feature stories of Fear Brewster Allerton and Desire Minter. Fear was the third daughter of Pilgrim, William Brewster and his wife, Mary. She was named "Fear" because, at the time of her birth around 1606, the Puritans were holding secret meetings and were under constant threat of arrest. In 1608, Fear moved, along with her family and other Pilgrims, to Amsterdam and later Leiden.

When she was 14 years old, Fear's parents and two younger brothers, Love and Wrestling, set sail for America on the Mayflower. Her older siblings, Jonathan (born in 1593) and Patience (born in 1600) cared for Fear after their parents left. Jonathan joined the Pilgrims in 1621 on board the Fortune. In July, 1623, Fear, about 18 years old, along with her sister, arrived in America, on board the Anne.

Kate LaPrad will portray "Fear Bewster Allerton"

Around 1626, Fear married Isaac Allerton, who was 20 years her senior. (Allerton's wife had died soon after the Mayflower landed.) Fear and Isaac had a son, Isaac Allerton, Jr., born in 1627. Fear's sister, Patience, was the first wife of Thomas Prence, who succeeded as Governor after William Bradford's death in 1657. Fear died young, probably 28 years old, when disease spread and killed many in the Colony, including her sister, who reportedly died on December 12, 1634 of "pestilent fever."

We look forward to this historical and informative presentation. See page 8 for details.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Dear Mayflower Cousins:

The calendar claims it is Fall, but as I write this message, we are enjoying Spring and Summer-like temperatures in October. No complaints from me!

Your Board has been finalizing plans for the Compact Day Dinner, to be held on Sunday, November 24, as well as other upcoming events. In the past, we have greatly enjoyed re-enactors at our Mayflower dinners. Arrangements have been made for Kate LaPrad, a re-enactor from Plimouth Plantation, to portray "Fear Brewster Allerton." On the following Monday, Kate will perform for fifth grade students at a Baltimore County school.

The General Board of Assistants meeting in New Orleans, hosted by the Louisiana Society, was a success. Susan Morrison, our Assistant General, has submitted a report which is included elsewhere in The Log. As a musician, I really appreciated some of the local music, which I was able to enjoy after the meetings.

I was unable to attend the 75th Anniversary celebration of our Maryland Society at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in May due to family matters. However, I was pleased to learn that the event was enjoyed by those in attendance. Thank you Jim Battles for arranging this successful event and for taking the lead in developing the commemorative coins that were given to each attendee. I was pleased to present these beautiful coins to the Executive Committee in New Orleans.

For the Spring Dinner, which is scheduled for April 27, 2014, we will return to the picturesque Gibson Island Club located on the Chesapeake Bay. We are finalizing arrangements with our guest speaker, whom I know you will not want to miss. Further information will appear in the Spring issue of The Mayflower Log. I look forward to seeing all of you at the upcoming Compact Day Dinner on November 24th in Annapolis.

Yours in preserving our Mayflower heritage,
Benjamin G. Proctor, Jr.
Governor, Maryland Society

New Orleans, LA

2013 General Society

Board of Assistants' Meeting

by Susan Paige Morrison
Assistant General

On Saturday, September 14, 2013, the General Board of Assistants met at the historic Omni Royal Orleans Hotel in New Orleans, Louisiana. Some 40 states plus Canada were represented by approximately 198 registered delegates and guests. Benjamin G. Proctor, Jr., Deputy Governor General, and Susan Paige Morrison, Assistant General, represented the State of Maryland.

Highlights:

- The Necrology was read, which included John Lee Pettit, Maryland's former Deputy Governor and Historian.
- Maryland Governor Benjamin Proctor gave a special presentation to the General Society in commemoration of the Maryland Society's 75th Anniversary.
- Governor General Bruce MacGunnigle briefly reviewed actions of the GSMD Executive Committee over the past year. Bruce has been incredibly active since his election in 2011 and has inaugurated many new ways to keep us informed.
- Three General Board Conference Calls were previously held nationwide for the first time ever, which prepared members.
- There were other interesting and informative reports, including: the Cole's Hill Anthropological Project (Surgeon General George Garmany), Historic Sites (Barbara Williams), Mayflower Quarterly (Alice Teal), Maryland House (Ben Proctor), and others.

The Louisiana Society members were wonderful, gracious hosts and organized numerous side trips to historic sites: Houmas House Plantation, the National WW11 Museum, and the Chalmette Battlement. The GSMD meets in Plymouth in 2014, the Board of Assistants will meet in Mystic, CT in 2015, and in Indiana in 2016.

Pilgrims & Pumpkins

"For pottage and puddings and custards and pies;
Our pumpkins and parsnips are common supplies;
We have pumpkins at morning and pumpkin at noon.
If it was not for pumpkin, we should be undone!"

Pilgrim verse, circa 1633

Without pumpkins, many more settlers might have died from starvation. Euopeans were introduced to American pumpkins and squashes in the late 15th century when Columbus carried seeds back with him. The Colonists were pleased to find pumpkins growing abundantly until "corne and cattell" were increased. The settlers also used pumpkins to make pumpkin beer--they fermented a brew of persimmons, hops, maple sugar and pumpkin.

THE PURITAN WAR ON CHRISTMAS

Christmas was not a holiday in Puritan New England. From 1659 to 1681, the celebration of Christmas was actually outlawed in Boston. A fine of five shillings (over one week's wages) was levied on anyone exhibiting the Christmas spirit. By contrast, in Jamestown, Captain John Smith reported that Christmas was enjoyed by all and passed without incident.

The Puritan View of Christmas

Puritans heaped contempt on Christmas for several reasons. First, no holy days, except the Sabbath, were sanctioned in Scripture. Second, the most egregious behaviors were exercised in the Christmas celebration (Cotton Mather railed against these behaviors). Third, December 25th was ahistorical. The Puritans argued that this date was an early Christian hijacking of a Roman festival honoring the birthday of Mithra, the sun god. To celebrate a December Christmas was to defile oneself by paying homage to a pagan custom.

The main reason Puritans did not like Christmas was that it was a raucously popular holiday in late medieval England, filled with bawdy drunkenness. "Men dishonor Christ more in the 12 days of Christmas," wrote Hugh Latimer, a 16th century clergyman, "than in all the 12 months besides."

The Puritans associated Christmas (and Easter) with paganism and idolatry and penalized frivolity.

Christmas Banned

The Puritans heaped contempt on Christmas, nicknaming it "foolstide" and banning anyone from celebrating it. On the first December 25th, the Pilgrims worked on building their first structure—thus demonstrating their contempt. The next year, Governor Bradford punished a group of non-Puritan workmen who were caught celebrating Christmas with a game of "stoole-ball"—a precursor of baseball. He scolded them, "my conscience cannot let you play while everybody else is out working,"

Puritan Views Tenacious

Although Christmas celebrations were legal after 1680, New England officials continued to frown upon gift giving and reveling. Evergreen decorations, associated with Pagan customs, were expressly forbidden in Puritan meeting houses and discouraged in the home.

Puritan Holidays... very few

The Puritan calendar was one of the "most leisure-less" ever adopted by mankind. The Pilgrims worked about 300 days per year compared to 240 days, which was more typical of ancient Rome and others. The Pilgrims' days of rest were restricted to the Sunday Sabbath, election day, Harvard commencement day, and periodic days of thanksgiving and humiliation. Non-Puritans deplored the lack of holidays enjoyed by the laboring classes back in England.

Merrymakers were prosecuted for disturbing the peace. As late as 1870, Boston public schools held classes on Christmas Day and punishments were given to children who chose to stay home beneath the Christmas tree. Some hinted that the Puritans viewed Santa Claus as the anti-Christ.

Anti-Christmas sentiment rose again around the time of the American Revolution. New Englanders began to associate Christmas with royal officialdom and refused to make it a holiday. In fact, Congress was in session on December 25, 1789, the first Christmas under the new constitution. Christmas was not declared a federal holiday until June 26, 1870.

The North and South were divided on the issue of Christmas, as well as on the question of slavery. Many Northerners saw sin in the celebration of Christmas. To these people, the celebration of Thanksgiving was more appropriate. However, in the South, Christmas was an important part of the social season. The first three states to make Christmas a legal holiday were in the South: Alabama in 1836, and Louisiana and Arkansas in 1838.

Post Civil War

In the years after the Civil War, Christmas traditions grew across the country. Children's books played an important role in spreading the customs of celebrating Christmas, especially the tradition of trimmed trees and gifts by Santa Claus. Sunday school classes encouraged the celebration of Christmas. Women's magazines suggested ways to decorate for the holidays, as well as how to make decorations. By the last quarter of the nineteenth century, America eagerly decorated trees, caroled, baked, and shopped for the Christmas season. Since that time, tradition, materialism, and mass marketing have made Christmas the holiday it is today.

MAYFLOWER WALL HANGING

"In Honor of My Pilgrim Ancestors"

wall hanging created by Gwendolyn Hartong

A beautiful quilted wall hanging created by Society member, Gwendolyn Hartong, was displayed at our 75th Anniversary Spring Dinner. Gwen meticulously researched her ancestors' heritage to create a wall hanging that depicts important aspects of Pilgrim history:

Leiden: The top panel depicts the area around Leiden in the early 1600's where the Pilgrims lived before arriving in Plymouth.
Mayflower: The middle panel shows the Mayflower voyage. Gwen found many of the details for making the sails from her visit to Plymouth and a book on building ship models.
Plimouth Plantation: The bottom panel illustrates Plimouth Plantation with symbolic items such as deer, shellfish, a shallop, eel, and beaver dam home in the Town brook.
Outer Border: The outer border contains appliques of various foods the Pilgrims ate: wild turkey, cod fish, herring, Indian corn. Also shown is a "may" flower, which is the emblem on the ship's stern.

Gwen carefully selected the fabrics, which she obtained from family, friends, and the fabric shop in Plymouth, to illustrate each detail. We thank Gwen for sharing this beautiful wall hanging.

75th Anniversary
COINS FOR SALE

Commemorative coins, which were commissioned in celebration of our 75-year anniversary, are still available for sale. The coin depicts the crossing of the Mayflower in 1620 on one side and the years of our organization, 1938-2013, on the other side. The price is $10.00 each, or two for $15.00. The coins will be available for sale at the Compact Day Dinner or contact Jim Battles at jbatt4644@aol.com.
