Cooking Like a Pilgrim

Colonial foods, herbs, & history

Katie Barney Moose, local author of several cookbooks and travel guides, will be our Guest Speaker. Her lecture will feature Colonial cooking, herbs, and history in early Plymouth.

Katie has authored several cookbooks, including the history of food and wine, and travel guides. She wrote her first guidebook on Annapolis in 1998 and published her first cookbook in 2000. Many of Katie's cookbooks are based on regional culinary traditions that feature various foods, herbs, and spices.

Before establishing her publishing company, Conduit Press Maryland, Katie authored several publications on fiber optic tele-communications. She is also a consultant on international business and protocol.

Author Katie Moose will discuss the preparation of food in early Plymouth.

Born in Baltimore, Katie is a descendant of the Clagett (Claggett) family of Maryland, and many old New England whaling families. She has lived in architectural, historical, and waterside communities across the U.S. including Annapolis; New Castle, DE; Newport and Providence, RI; Cold Spring Harbor, NY; San Francisco; Philadelphia; Greenwich; Alexandria, VA; Washington, D.C.; and New York City.

Katie resides in Easton, Maryland, and is working on an international cookbook that will include recipes contributed by ambassadors, chefs, and friends, as well as the history of cuisines around the world and proper dining etiquette. Her hobbies include fine wines, history, sailing, genealogy, gardening, theology, and travel. We look forward to this informative presentation.

See page 12 for details.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Dear Mayflower Cousins:

Spring is finally here and the cherry blossoms are out again. Our speaker for the Compact Day Dinner last November was Lea Filson, Governor General of our General Society. She gave an informative presentation and described many exciting activities planned for the upcoming year.

The triennial General Society Congress will be held in Plymouth, September 8-13, 2017, which is always a special time. Eight delegates have been allocated for the Maryland Society as voting members. Our Society will reimburse expenses up to $500.00 for delegates to attend the Congress. I urge any of you who would like to be a delegate to let me know as soon as possible. The registration information was just sent out as part of the Mayflower Quarterly, which you should have received in the mail by now.

I want to welcome three new members of the Board. Christopher Locke has agreed to serve as Assistant Historian and is hard at work helping Dwight Mason keep up with our flow of applications. Anne Adams-Kennedy is our new Webmaster and Member-at-Large. Anne is updating and planning some exciting new additions to the Society's website. Louesa Canning is our new Assistant Treasurer. In accordance with our By-laws, we will be electing new officers and members of the Board of Assistants at the Compact Day Dinner in November. I would like to invite any of our members who are interested in becoming more involved in the Society to consider serving on the Board.

We have an exciting program planned for our Spring Dinner, which will be held at the Inn at Brookeville Farms. I look forward to seeing all of you at the Dinner.

Yours in preserving our Mayflower Heritage,

James Bruce Battles
Governor, Maryland Mayflower Society

Pilgrims & Waffles

Journey to the New World

Waffles have a long history. Ancient Greeks cooked a waffle-like cake called, “oblelios”. In the Middle Ages, to compete with monasteries, bakers began making communion wafers. By the 11th century, flavorings, such as orange blossom water, was added. The waffle was developed using the same wafer iron method by “baking” a thin cake between two metal plates attached to a long wooden handle held over an open fire. In the 13th century, cooks began decorating these metal plates with Biblical scenes, crosses, and other religious icons and served waffles after meals as a symbol of final blessing. It was not until the 15th century that the rectangular shape of the waffle evolved with a shallow grid pattern.

By 1603, waffles were extremely popular in Europe, even being sold by street vendors. Vendors would obtain a special license (for a fee), which allowed them to sell waffles to parishioners at church door exits on feast days.

“Market Woman at a Vegetable Stand”

Painting by Pieter Aertsen (1508-1575). Circa 1567.

All echelons of society ate waffles. Commoners often used water and bad flour during bread shortages to make thick waffles. The privileged made thinner waffles and added eggs, milk, honey, and sometimes oil to create a lighter, delicate, and more tasty treat.

The Dutch enjoyed their waffles, too. In Holland, the Pilgrims became familiar with this delicacy, and subsequently, brought waffles to the New World. The Dutch also brought waffles to America separately—by way of New Amsterdam, which later became New York City. The earliest chicken-and-waffle combination appeared in Pennsylvania Dutch country during the 1600s, when cooks made waffles and topped them with pulled chicken and gravy. The English did not eat waffles.

Thomas Jefferson, was introduced to waffles while in France in the 1780’s. He enjoyed waffles so much that he brought a waffle iron from Amsterdam back to the U.S. . He even served waffles at the White House, where they became an instant hit! Waffle parties, or “waffle frolics,” as they were called, soon became a stylish way to entertain in America. Guests could enjoy their waffles either sweet—with maple syrup or molasses—or savory. Kidney stew was a popular topping for non-sweetened waffles.

The first U.S. waffle iron was patented on August 24, 1869, which is why August 24th is National Waffle Day. Electric waffle irons did not come along until 1911, when General Electric produced the first commercial model.

Pilgrims Meet the Arts

The Pilgrim Story through Art

by Governor James B. Battles

One of the most powerful storytelling tools is through the art of painting. Art has been used for centuries to convey images that help tell important stories, like Leutze's painting of "Washington Crossing the Delaware". As we approach the 400th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims, we should consider the stories that have not yet been told about our Pilgrim forefathers and mothers.

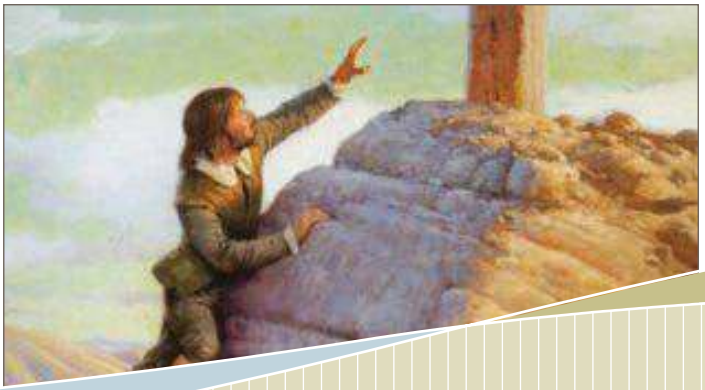
A number of paintings, completed in the latter part of the 19th century, contain images that we now know are incorrect. Some portray our ancestors in inaccurate costumes; others show Native American images that are flawed. Illustrations of log cabins and images of Native Americans dressed in Plains Indian clothing are almost laughable and detract from the real story.

There is only one image of a Mayflower passenger painted from real life—that of Edward Winslow. Few images exist for the rest of the passengers. While the re-enactors of Plimoth Plantation provide a reasonably accurate picture of how some of our ancestors might have dressed, few individual stories have been told through art. The focus of such art should not be on large paintings of heroic figures for museums like Pilgrim Hall, but rather for our homes.

The year 2020 will mark the fourth centennial anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims. This event occurs every 100 years. The 300th anniversary, in 1920, had a profound impact on the Country and created interest not only in the Pilgrims, but the entire Colonial period. Today, we have an opportunity to help shape the Pilgrim story through art, and influence society for the next 100 years.

Two types of stories are worth considering:

Pilgrim's Progress: Art depicting John Bunyan's story of the tumultuous journey of getting to the cross on the hill.



A picture is worth a thousand words....

"The First Thanksgiving at Plymouth" depicted through a woman's perspective, Pilgrim Hall Museum. Painting by Jennie Augusta Brownscombe (1914).

- stories that apply to the overall pilgrim story, e.g., the first meeting of the Native American and the Pilgrims; or
- stories of Mayflower passengers that tell an important fact about the individual or family, e.g., William Bradford writing On Plymouth Plantation or Peter Brown and his Mastiff dog.

Fortunately, we have a number of artists who specialize in conveying American history through art. Artists such as Pamela Patrick White and her husband, Bryant White, are two examples, but there are several others (see www.whitehistoricart.com). Pamela has completed a commissioned historical painting for Jim and Carolyn Battles. The painting illustrates a story of Carolyn's Elliott family, which occurred during the Pontiac War in 1763.

As part of our 2020 activities, our Society has commissioned a painting of the story of the first encounter of the Pilgrims and Native Americans entitled, "Welcome Englishman." This painting reflects the story of the Samoset Indians who boldly entered the Plymouth Village and, announced—in English—"Welcome Englishman", before the startled Edward Winslow, Stephen Hopkins, and Miles Standish. Pamela Patrick White has been commissioned to create the painting. Governor Jim Battles is also personally commissioning a painting of his ancestor, James Chilton, and his unfortunate incident when he was struck by a rock outside his home in Leiden.

Our Society will donate the original painting to the General Society for display. We will also produce a high-quality replica of the painting on a 16 x 20 canvas, which will be offered for sale to our members and the public as a way of generating revenue. The estimated cost will be $100.00.

MARYLAND SCHOLARSHIP FUND
2017-2018

The Maryland Society is offering a $1,000 scholarship to a descendant of the Mayflower. The required application will include an essay, documentation of GPA, letters of reference, and proof of community service as follows:

1. Eligibility: To be eligible, an applicant must:
   - be a member, Junior Member, or have direct lineage to a member of the Society (child, grandchild, nephew, or niece). No restriction on the applicant's residence; and
   - be registered for study at a four-year college or university—documentation required.
2. Application: The application and instructions are available on our Maryland Society website, or by contacting Governor Battles.
3. Essay: Please submit a 500-600 word essay on the topic, "How will being a Mayflower descendant likely shape my future."
4. Additional Documents: Also submit: (a) a list of extracurricular activities, honors, and any other pertinent information that demonstrates community involvement; (b) recent photo (jpeg); and (c) transcripts or report cards of the previous two semesters.
5. Deadline: All submissions must be received by May 1, 2017. Winners announced, June 1st.

Please note more than one scholarship may be awarded depending on funding availability. Awards may be given for two consecutive years if updated transcripts show a GPA of 3.0.

New Look for The Mayflower Quarterly

The Mayflower Quarterly has a new name, new look, and a new editor. The new quarterly is a larger format "magazine" style, consisting of up to 24 pages, with full-color pictures. It contains Society news and business, with Susan Roser as the new Editor. The magazine will be delivered to your home four times a year and is also available online under the Members-Only section of the GSMD website.

Society Website

www.MarylandMayflower.org

Our new Webmaster, Anne Adams-Kennedy, is updating our website, www.MarylandMayflower.org. The redesigned site will be easier to navigate and will allow for the seamless use of social media such as Facebook and Twitter. The site will continue to be a resource tool to bring you updated and relevant information. A new membership application, schedule of fees, and revised dues for future life members will be posted. The site will also continue to accept credit card payments to make it easier to pay for annual dues and other fees (such as the Spring Dinner), as well as products for sale.

Commemorative Coin Project

Still Alive!

The Commemorative Coin Project is still alive. Although the bill died last Session, the GSMD is working on a new bill, which should be released shortly. We need your help in contacting senators and representatives to campaign for the coin. Stay tuned!

Maryland Society Officers, 2017-2020 Term

Every three years, the Maryland Society seeks energetic and enthusiastic members to become volunteer leaders as Board Directors and Officers. Members are invited to submit names for consideration. You can be part of this wonderful dedicated, talented, and congenial group. This is the time to consider becoming a candidate (or nominating someone)! For more information, contact any of the Board members.

SAVE THE DATE:

November 19, 2017

The Compact Day Dinner will be held at the Hilton DoubleTree Hotel in Annapolis. Our Guest Speaker will be a re-enactor from Plimoth Plantation who will re-enact one of the four women who sailed aboard the Mayflower. You won't want to miss it!

E-Mail Reminder

The Maryland Society encourages using e-mail whenever possible. To receive a digital copy of our newsletter, please provide your e-mail address to the Corresponding Secretary, Nancy Young. Or, you can view the newsletter on our Website. Please also contact us if there are any changes to your membership, including death, marriage, e-mail, or address.

2016 Compact Day Dinner

Dress Like a Pilgrim

Our Society is fortunate to have our own costumer. Susan Battles Brown has been working with members during the past year to create historic Pilgrim costumes. With the assistance of our members, Jim Battles, Susan Morrison, and Tim Mallory, Susan was able to showcase her custom-made costumes at the Compact Day Dinner. Susan explained how these Pilgrim costumes and accessories can be made today from raw material and by incorporating existing products. Many thanks to Susan and her "models" for sharing these beautiful costumes.

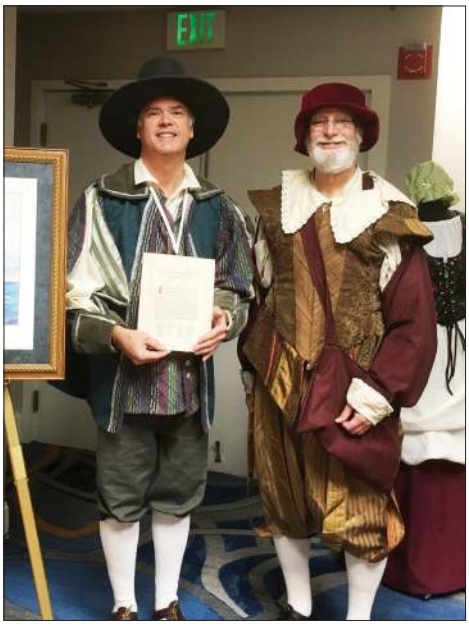
2016 Compact Day Dinner

"The State of Our Society"

Our annual Compact Day Dinner was held on Sunday, November 20, 2016, at the Hilton DoubleTree Hotel in Annapolis. Governor Jim Battles introduced our Guest Speaker, Lea Filson, Governor General of the General Society. Governor General Filson discussed communications outreach efforts, the DNA policy, the 2020 Coin Project, renovations to the Mayflower House, and the acquisition of the First Parrish Church. Governor Battles and our Board Members did a great job of making sure the Compact Day Dinner ran smoothly with a full program.



Deputy Governor Tim Mallory and Governor Jim Battles welcome members.

In recognition for turning 100 years old, Deputy Governor Tim Mallory presented an honorary "Friend" membership to Mrs. Virginia Corneliussen, mother of member, Dian Corneliussen.

Governor General Filson discussed the status of our Society and upcoming events.

Governor General Lea Filson, Elder Ben Proctor, Gini Patterson, and Member-at-large Susan Morrison welcome honorary guest, Mrs. Virginia Corneliussen.
